SETTING THE STANDARD

This month marks the opening of CADE winery in Napa, PlumpJack's newest venture. CADE has earned a gold LEED certification. The building includes materials such as concrete made with 30 percent fly ash, steel made of 98 percent recycled material, glass and wood certified by the Forest Stewardship Council (FSC). Architect Juan Carlos Fernandez of Lail Design Group created a structure with a unique inverted roof that floats over a collection of concrete walls and vertical shapes. For visitors, there will be plug-in bases for hybrid electric cars, bicycle racks, and even a shower so cyclists can freshen up before an event or tasting. Wines will be produced under the direction of award-winning winemaker Tony Biagi.
